COUNTY ACT
CONFERENCEAgreement is Reached.
Amendments
Made.

A bomb from Cushing's Manual nearly dumped the County bill in the closing moments of the meeting of the conference committee of seven members from each branch of the Legislature, held in the Senate chamber last night. Senator Paris threw the bomb.

It was on a motion by Senator Dickey that the committee recommend to both houses the passage of the bill with the amendments agreed upon in conference.

Mr. Paris quoted from Cushing, at the critical moment, a rule to put the chair in the wrong for a ruling made on one of the amendments.

Senator Dowsett was chairman of conference and his ruling was that a majority of the conference controlled action on any item, instead of separate majorities of members of the respective houses.

After a warm discussion the chair decided to maintain its ruling for the sake of getting to the end of things, even if it was not according to Cushing.

Mr. Paris, on the strength of his citation, had intimated that the motion to report agreement would avail nothing, since a majority of the Senate conferees—Dickey, Randall, McCandless and himself—had voted against the amendments to the sections apportioning supervisors for the counties of Oahu and Hawaii.

When it came to the vote on the motion to report, however, the whole danger was averted by a majority of the Senators voting to report agreement. The dissenting Senators were Paris, Randall and McCandless.

There was one other serious disagreement on parliamentary practice, which arose on the question of whether a new item—created by splitting one in the original bill—could be raised from the figure passed by the Senate. This referred to the creation of a deputy tax assessorship for Molokai. After a lengthy wrangle, in which Senator Woods quoted the Congressional Record for the affirmative, the chair ruled that any item referred to the conference might be amended as desired by a majority.

THE AMENDMENTS.

While the one county instead of two for Hawaii, as made by the Senate, was agreed to by the county supervisors for Hawaii were reapportioned as follows: One from North and South Kona, one from North and South Kohala, one each from Kau, Puna and Hamakua, and two from North and South Hilo, seven in all.

Oahu's supervisors were reapportioned as follows: Three from the district of Honolulu, one from Ewa, one from Waiānae and Waiālae, one from Koolauloa and Koolāupoko, and one at large.

The pay of supervisors was left at where the Senate placed it—$600 a year instead of $300 as the bill passed the House.

Rep. Harris had the pay of Oahu officers raised as follows: assessor, from $2400 to $2700; treasurer, from $2000 to $2400; county clerk, from $900 to $1500.

Senator Hayselden had pay of deputy assessor of Lahaina reduced from $1500 to $1000, owing to the cutting out of Molokai as a separate district; also Makavao deputy assessor's from $1500 to $1200. It was on his motion to pay the Molokai deputy assessor $720 instead of $600 that the row already mentioned arose. The same member had the deputy sheriff of Wailuku raised from $900 to $1200 because he was deputy for the whole county.

Rep. Rice had all of the Kauai items restored as in the bill from the House. McCandless and Dickey made a ruling fight throughout against the raises, the former throwing financial statistics in bunches at the movers.

Rep. Holstein, when Paris threw Cushing at the conference, asked bitterly if the understanding was that the Senators there wished to dump the County bill.

Paris disclaimed any such desire, but wanted things done according to parliamentary practice.

Rep. Fernandez claimed that a ruling accepted without appeal was binding. Rep. Aylett backed him up. Rep. Kaula contended that Cushing did not bind the conference. They were governed by the chair's ruling.

McCandless resented the assertion of Holstein, saying that the raising of salaries was what would kill county government. The House in demanding concessions and granting none was doing the mischief.

Holstein retorted that of 54 items amended by the Senate 33 had been agreed to, while the House conferees had only obtained 21 items of the bunch as amended in conference.

Harris made a strong speech on the same line as Holstein had developed. Dickey came to the rescue by saying that although he had voted against House propositions in several cases, yet he would like to see a unanimous report. At his request Harris became the mover to report favorably on the amendments.

Chairman Dowsett had made an eloquent plea for harmony to expedite the business of the Legislature in maintaining his ruling.

The motion carried with Senators Paris, Randall and McCandless in the minority—of the Senate delegation as well as the conference. This fact was taken as curing the alleged parliamentary defect in the proceedings.

It was 10:10 when the conference adjourned.

DR.
DEIMEL
UNDERWEAR

Underwear is often called "body linens." Linen absorbs, towels are made of it—it dries rapidly—is known for its cleanliness, but ordinarily it is cold and clammy.

In the Dr. Deimel Underwear the coldness has been taken out of linen. By a special process of manufacture a soft, warm and porous fabric has been evolved, called Linen-Mesh (a word registered by Dr. Deimel in 1894, but now used by others indiscriminately). Since its introduction ten years ago, the Dr. Deimel Linen-Mesh Underwear has received the most friendly and grateful appreciation throughout the world.

The Dr. Deimel Underwear is made in such a wide variety of sizes that we can fit everybody.

SCOTCH SINGER'S
GAELIC MISSION

"I am a pioneer in exploiting Scotch and Gaelic music before the world."

So said Miss Jessie MacLachlan, the Scottish prima donna, last evening while chatting on the lanai of the Hawaiian Hotel. It was not a bold assertion, but came in the midst of a delightful talk on Scotland and her own hopes and ambitions, but the chief charm of it all was the pleasing Scotch accent which ran through her conversation. Miss MacLachlan is a really beautiful woman with a wealth of deepest black hair, beneath which are a pair of snappy black eyes, the traditional black eyes so often told of in Scottish verse. And she is a twentieth century Gael if there ever was one.

"Oh, I began singing when I was but fifteen," she said, when asked about her musical career. "You know I am a Highlander," and her eyes blazed with unmistakable pride.

As to Gaelic, that is our tongue in the Highlands, and that is the language I am exploiting to the musical world. Oh, yes, the songs I sing are the melodies of the Highlands, not improvisations by outside composers and set to the Gaelic words. These songs I heard when I was but a babe. As a Scotch woman I take pride in singing them to the world, for when I do the sentiment in them goes straight out from my heart. Yes, I have my own ways of interpreting songs, but then I know the sentiment in them. It was born in me and my ancestors. One can sing the words of a song and yet not touch the inner depths, but when one is born to a knowledge of the Highland and Gaelic tongue then one can interpret them properly. My way of singing 'Comin' Thro' the Rye?' Well, the inner knowledge is right here in my breast.

"It is my mission to interest people in Scotland, and especially its music. The world will know some time that the Scottish music is something which can be listened to with as much pleasure as an opera. I know there was a time when a Scotch song upon a program really dulled the audience. But I am happy to say that every audience to which I have sung, and I have made four tours in the United States, has shown its appreciation of our music. I have received many offers to sing under various managements, that would have the selection of my songs, but I have declined for I prefer to sing the songs of dear old Scotland, rather than to go outside for other music."

"We have always appeared before good and appreciative audiences. I also take pride in saying that I have never been late to a concert, although I have been in railway accidents, have been snow-bound, and have experienced all manner of difficulties in travelling. And then the number of times I have sung. Night after night it has been, with several hundred concerts all told but I like to sing, for when I do it takes me back to the Highlands and that makes me happy and eager to sing."

"As to Honolulu I think it is heavenly. I came here to rest and am getting it. We are out early in the morning to get the fresh air and during the day we take in the lovely sights. Its my first visit, so you see I have been greatly impressed. Its a pleasurable break in our work."

Miss MacLachlan did not say work as we say it, but she said with the quaintest little accent, war-r-k.

Miss MacLachlan sings again on Saturday night at the Opera House.

"Dear me!" exclaimed Mrs. Oldcastle, "I'm so shocked to hear that Mrs. Plunkett has applied for a divorce. Do you know what is the matter?" "Josiah," her hostess replied, "says it's on statutory grounds. I guess it must have been over that nasty statue of Venus with nothing on that he brought from Europe and put in the hall."—Chicago Record-Herald.

REVIVAL FILLS
LARGEST CHURCH

His words were translated into Hawaiian by David Ai, into Chinese by one of the Chinese ministers and into Japanese by Dr. Scudder himself.

After the singing of the hymn, "Oh, That Will Be Glory" that has been used with such effect at the English revivals of Dr. Torrey and Mr. Alexander many sentence prayers were made in different languages by people in the congregation. The scripture reading was the story of Pentecost. After the reading Dr. Scudder spoke a few words regarding the significance of the revival and the duty of the people toward it. He said that he had read the Advertiser editorial published yesterday morning and that it told the truth in saying that there was need of a leader. There was no leader but Christ. But God will not do things alone. We must join hands with him. He wants us to participate in the redemption of the world. He told a story of a Scotch woman who was crossing a river and was saved from drowning as she thought by a miracle. She saved up money until she was able to build a bridge across the dangerous stream and put on the bridge an inscription saying that the bridge was built by "God and me." That is the idea. God does not want us to sit back and let him do everything. We must be up and doing our share.

Dr. Scudder told another story of a mine in Wales that became flooded. The men rushed to the shaft only to find that the wire communicating with the electric bell signal was broken and the cage was at the top of the shaft. One miner had been a sailor and he climbed up to the place where the break was. Holding on with his hands, with his teeth he pressed the wires together and the spark of electricity went through the wire, the cage came down and carried the men up to safety. So we can make the connection between God and the souls of men. If we do our work in making that connection He will send the spark. There are many men in this city who have never had anyone speak to them regarding the salvation of their souls. Would we not be happier if when we reach the other shore there be some there who would not have been there but for us?

After Dr. Scudder's address silent prayers were offered by those in the congregation for those whom they wished to be touched by the Spirit while Mr. Livingston sang "I Am Praying for You." The service closed with prayer by Rev. J. W. Wadman.

THE DAY MEETINGS.

There were two services during the day. The first was held in the Methodist church at 10 a. m. and was led by Dr. Kincaid. It was well attended. In the afternoon at 3:30 a service was held in the Christian church. It was led by Rev. John W. Wadman. The church was packed, which is remarkable for the time of day. Mr. Wadman made a short address and the rest of the meeting was devoted to song, prayer and testimonies. A feature of the meeting was the large number of sentence prayers and the way in which everyone took part. Many stated that they had received a great spiritual uplift from the meeting.
